

Suits That Interpret Types

Full spring and summer of life. As interpreted in suits for young and older women, meet in the picture above. Here two conceptions are shown: one of them youthful and novel, with a picturesque hint of Spain in its short jacket and handsome sash, the other dignified and conservative, exquisitely tailored, disdaining decorations and fussiness in lines; fulfilling the exacting requirement of mature women. Women who have reached middle life and acquired poise, are not amenable to all the whims of fashion that lure their younger sisters. Youth may disport itself in any of the styles and carry them off, but many of these are not suited to older women. They are wise when they choose what looks best on them and, by this means, arrive at a distinction in dress that belongs to their years.

The handsome suit at the left is made of beige-colored pique twill. All that may be said of it is told by the camera which has not failed to present every detail in its makeup. The plain semi-fitted coat introduces a short, rippling pleat. In three sec-

ANCIENT INDIANS PRACTICED CRUDE SURGERY, CLAIM

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, April 16.—Prehistoric Indians of South America had crude medicine men who removed splinters of arrowheads and stone blades from wounded warriors by cutting through the skull with knives of stone or obsidian and other simple instruments wrought from copper and bronze. Sometimes the patient died; frequently he went to the happy hunting grounds.

These uncomfortable treatments of serious casualties from tribal skirmishes still continue in remote areas of Bolivia. Evidence of this has been gathered by field workers from the American Museum of Natural History.

Of nearly 1200 skulls collected in South America by the late Dr. Adolph Bandelier for exhibition in the museum, about 5 per cent has been operated upon. To surgeons the practice is known as trephining. It consists of removing a disk or button of bone from the skull with a saw called a trephine.

Complex fracture of the skull with depression of the bony plates must have been common occurrences during the ancient tribal wars when clubs headed with stone and copper along with slings, the "bolo" and the "blat" were offensive weapons, said the reports of the museum's investigators.

MAY INSTALL A MOVING SIDEWALK

(By Associated Press)
PARIS, April 16.—A moving sidewalk to relieve congestion is being considered by the city of Paris. The chances for adoption may not be great but the idea is being seriously considered by Parisians who have pleasant memories of the aerial sidewalk that was a feature of the 1900 world's exposition here.

The proposal is to build such a moving sidewalk under the principal boulevards from the Madeleine to the Place de la Republique. A pedestrian not only would avoid danger, delaying crossings, but would not be impeded by cars and crowded sidewalks of traffic.

GERMANY NOT ATTRACTIVE TO U. S. TOURISTS

(By Associated Press)
BERLIN, April 16.—American summer will find conditions of travel far less attractive than in pre-war days. In Hamburg and Berlin hotel facilities are constantly overtaxed by business men and even persons who have telegraphed days in advance for accommodations are turned away by the first-class hotels. If foreigners are assigned to rooms they pay far more than is charged in Germany.

Conditions along the Rhine are not especially inviting for tourists. The largest pleasure resorts are overtaxed by the occupying armies, and it is almost impossible for outsiders to get first-class hotel accommodations. Cologne, Coblenz and Mainz are filled to overflowing by British, American and French officers, respectively. Most of the hotels are under control of the military and cannot be used by civilians unless they have authorization from commanding officers.

It is also difficult for tourists to travel between the various sections of the occupied area. Police registration is very strict and permits must be obtained to enter and leave various areas.

At any moment the German wearing the first straw hat of the season may make his debut.
